Cancer of the pancreas is a disease which has an increasing incidence: the main factor is represented by the pancreas cancer which evolves from chronic pancreatitis and less commonly from the pancreatic cancer secondary to chronic ischemia. The cancer of the pancreas develops from pre-malignant lesion and pancreatic cancer develops less than 5 years after the appearance of the pre-malignant lesion. The malignant tumour is generally advanced at the time of the diagnosis and the disease prognosis is poor. The aim of the present study was to review the data published in the literature, to suggest some key-points of the diagnostic, therapeutic and prognostic management of this disease.[F-18 FDG-PET/CT findings in patients with pulmonary tuberculosis and coexistent lung disease (author's transl)]. F-18 FDG-PET/CT was performed in 55 patients with pulmonary tuberculosis to investigate its usefulness as an imaging method for the differential diagnosis of lung lesions. Thirteen patients had lung lesions coexisting with various chronic lung diseases, including benign non-tuberculous lung diseases and other lung cancers. The F-18 FDG-PET/CT findings of the coexisting pulmonary diseases were compared with those of the pulmonary tuberculosis. In all lung cancers, F-18 FDG accumulation was observed in the primary lesion and regional lymph nodes. F-18 FDG accumulation was not found in the benign lung diseases and healthy lung. In patients with benign lung diseases, F-18 FDG accumulation was observed in several coexisting lung lesions such as bronchogenic carcinoma or reactive changes, but not in the primary lesions. These results suggest that F-18 FDG-PET/CT is useful in the differential diagnosis of lung lesions in patients with pulmonary tuberculosis. Does the extent of retinoblastoma and heritable variables affect pineal activity? The present study assessed the activity of the pineal gland of a group of Rb-retinoblastoma patients and a group of control subjects who did not have inborn genetic problems. Tryptophan hydrox
